

Boyd Bishop

Mr. Bishop was a career foreign service officer with the US Department of State for twenty-two years. He was a political specialist focused on East-West issues from the height of the Cold War through its waning years and up to America's ultimate victory. He held senior positions in US Embassies in East Berlin and Warsaw, and in Washington, DC.

From 1985 to 1990 he headed an interagency committee under National Security Council auspices, charged with developing policy options to encourage reform in the Soviet Union and the then Soviet Bloc. After the fall of the Berlin Wall, Mr. Bishop retired from government.

He formed Bishop Associates in 1990 to pursue direct commercial and infrastructure development between US and European companies and the newly independent Soviet Republics. Through his company, he has provided business development and project management consulting for a range of activities involving technology transfer and infrastructure. Over the years his clients and teaming partners have come from the public and private sectors. They include IBM, Price-Waterhouse, the US Nuclear Regulatory Commission, Scientech, Inc., Garbersbau GmbH, Superfoss Construction A/S, and local and national government agencies and private firms in the Baltics, Russia, Ukraine and Central Asia.

Mr. Bishop holds a BA degree in International Affairs from Hunter College, City University of New York.
